BREAK THE CHAIN!

There once was a man in South Bend
Who got a chain letter from a friend
It promised great wealth
Not to mention good health
But it paid not a cent in the end.

Now this guy had a friend in L.A.
Who got an email chain the same day.
She said, "This deal's too sweet
I'm hitting delete
'Cause I know, in the end, that I'll pay."

When it comes to the chain letter draw
There's no reason to hem and to haw.
Chain letters aren't funny
They take your time and your money
But more important —
they're breaking the law.
